BENCHMARKS FOR THE NEXT MICHIGAN: 2010 UPDATE SUMMARY BRIEF

In 2002, the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC) released Benchmarks for the Next Michigan: Measuring Our Competitiveness – the first comprehensive benchmarking analysis of Michigan's competitive position relative to other states across the nation. Using the same methodology, this study presents an up-to-date assessment of Michigan's relative strengths and weaknesses in today's dramatically changed economy. This report is intended to provide a solid factual and analytical foundation to facilitate the state's new leaders and legislators to Michigan forward move through appropriate economic development strategies and initiatives.

Using a tailored Competitiveness Foundations Web Model, the study ranks Michigan among other U.S. states using a summary score for each state, which is a synthesis of scores from the seven foundational areas assessed in this benchmarking study: Human Investment, Financial Resources, Innovation Resources, Infrastructure, Business Costs, Globalization & Vitality, and Quality of Life. Scores are presented on a scale of 1 to 100 (with a score of 100 representing perfect performance and 50 representing the national average), based on a state's rankings among all 50 states in the nation.

Where Does Michigan Stand?

Michigan's ranking for overall competitiveness falls second to last (17th) among the benchmark states, exceeding only that of South Carolina. Its score (346.7) is well below the average for the benchmark states (378.6), and also falls below the midpoint nationally, with a nationwide ranking of 29th.

In two of the seven Competitiveness Foundation categories – Innovation Resources and Quality of Life -Michigan's scores exceed both the average score for the benchmark states and the national average. Michigan also exceeds the national average for Financial Resources. Michigan falls below both the national and benchmark state averages in the other categories: Human Investment, Financial Resources, Infrastructure, Business Costs, and Globalization & Vitality.

How Has Michigan's Position Changed?

Michigan's overall level of competitiveness has declined significantly since 2002, when it ranked 9th among the benchmark states and 9th nationally. This development is primarily due to a major drop in its scores and rankings for Human Investment, Financial Resources, Infrastructure, Globalization & Vitality, and Quality of Life. Michigan's performance for Innovation Resources has stayed consistently high over time, while its performance for Business Costs has improved.
